

Hockey Academy Davos

The Davos Hockey Club’s hockey academy has set a goal to finance, through an endowment) a professional, youth academy that can exist independent of the success of the professional team. The earnings from the endowment go to hire top-class coaches and trainers. Simultaneously, talented youth are supported in their education. The earnings also go to house the young players.

The Katadyn Group sees sport as an important part of character development. In addition to offering opportunities to keep the body healthy, sport teaches people how to handle victory and defeat, dedication, discipline, considerateness, fairness and ambition, just to name a few things. For these reasons, the Katadyn group helped create the endowment and takes part in the endowment council. Because this is a long-term project, the Katadyn Group plans to support the hockey academy through a yearly contribution.

Update

In line with the development of the academy, the Katadyn Group has agreed to be the helmet sponsor for the Davos Hockey Club’s development team for the next three years. This is also an effort to support the junior sports independently from the success of the professional teams and will thus be able to help the hockey academy ensure sustainable success.

Sports fans can see the Katadyn logo behind each net during every home game.
